SPECIAL CLEARANCE AND ISSUANCE PROCEDURES

(TL:VISA-215; 10-24-2000)

The Embassy has entered into CLASS the names of all aliens about whom derogatory information is available. Posts with CLASS capability, therefore, should not request a clearance from Manila unless the CLASS check indicates that derogatory information is on file at the Embassy. It is strongly recommended that all posts do not clear on-line first-time NIV applicants with Manila. When requesting clearances on members of tour groups, requests should include the full name, and, if possible, the Manila address of the tour organizer.

DOCUMENTS AND RECORDS

Police Record

(TL:VISA-215; 10-24-2000)

Available. Philippine-born immigrant visa applicants are required to furnish certificates issued by the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI). Foreign-born applicants who have resided in the Philippines for six months or more may be issued NBI clearances upon application either in person or by mail. Applicants should send requests for certificates together with certified checks or money orders for the fees and postage to the Philippine National Bureau of Investigation, Taft Avenue, Metro Manila, Philippines. The NBI has its own fingerprint charts and personal data forms that it will send to the requesting applicant for execution. Most applicants abroad find it more expeditious to have a relative or friend in the Philippines assist them in obtaining their certificates from the NBI. Posts are advised that not all arrests and convictions occurring outside of Manila are reported to the NBI. The process is sometimes slow and a follow-up is often required. There may be a fee for this service.

Prison Record

(TL:VISA-215; 10-24-2000)

Available. Applications should be made to the Director, Bureau of Prisons, National Penitentiary, Muntinlupa City, Metro Manila, Philippines. Local police chiefs usually furnish details of jail terms upon request.

Military Record

(TL:VISA-215; 10-24-2000)

Available. Certificate of Prior Service can be obtained from the Office of the Adjutant General, Armed Forces of the Philippines, Department of National Defence at Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, Metro Manila, Philippines.

Birth Certificate

(TL:VISA-215; 10-24-2000)

Available. A certified copy of a birth registration can be obtained from the local civil registrar at the place of birth. Local civil registrar records are often incomplete and it is, therefore, necessary to accept baptismal certificates. If they too are unobtainable, then affidavits from two persons who have personal knowledge of the birth are acceptable.

Frequently, certificates for births occurring since 1946 may also be obtained from the National Census and Statistics Office (NCSO), Office of the Civil Registrar-General, Magsaysay Blvd., Santa Mesa, Metro Manila, Philippines. Certificates of birth before 1946 are maintained at the National Archives Division at T.M. Kalaw St., Ermita, Manila. Issuance of a birth certificate takes approximately three to four working days, for which there may be a fee, plus an additional fee if issuance is to take place within 24 hours, or if the document is to be printed on special security paper.

Marriage Certificate

(TL:VISA-215; 10-24-2000)

Available. Certified copies can be obtained from the local civil registrar of the place where the marriage occurred. When this record is unavailable, the same procedure is followed as in the cases of birth certificates. Certification of marriages occurring since 1946 may also be obtained from the National Census and Statistics Office (NCSO), Office of the Civil Registrar-General, Magsaysay Blvd., Santa Mesa, Metro Manila, Philippines. Marriage certificates before 1946 are maintained at the National Archives Division at T.M. Kalaw St., Ermita, Manila. Issuance of a marriage certificate takes approximately three to four working days for which there may be a fee, plus an additional fee if issuance is to take place within 24 hours, or if the document is to be printed on special security paper.

Death Certificate

(TL:VISA-215; 10-24-2000)

Available. Certified copies can be obtained from local civil registrars. When unobtainable, two affidavits from persons having personal knowledge of the death are usually accepted. As in the cases of birth and marriage, certificates of deaths occurring since 1946 are obtainable from the National Census and Statistics Office. Death certificates before 1946 are maintained at the National Archives Division at T.M. Kalaw St., Ermita, Manila. Issuance of a death certificate takes approximately three to four working days for which there may be a fee, plus an additional fee if issuance is to take place within 24 hours, or if the document is to be printed on special security paper.

Divorce Decree

(TL:VISA-215; 10-24-2000)

Available. Certified copies of the divorce certificate can be obtained from the appropriate court, if the divorce was recognized in the Philippines between March 11, 1917 and August 29, 1950. Since August 29, 1950, the courts have been empowered to grant legal separation but not divorce. Even during the period of legal recognition, divorces were rare in the Philippines because of limited legal grounds for granting divorces.

NOTE: Local civil records in many localities in the Philippines have been destroyed due to war and natural calamities. When a specific document is unavailable, it is advisable to obtain a certificate of non-availability from the local civil registrar. Church records, while useful as secondary evidence, are frequently unavailable for the same reasons. Local parishes usually issue similar certificates of non-availability. In the absence of primary and secondary evidence, substantiated by replies from civil or church authorities, affidavits from two persons who have personal knowledge of the birth, death, or marriage which is in question are generally accepted. Since fraudulent documents can be obtained easily in the Philippines, the consular officer may wish to consider referring suspect documents in doubtful cases to the Anti-Fraud Unit, U.S. Embassy Manila, for investigation.
